CAMPBELL

Chosen to Lead the Democratic Hosts.

Selected by Acclamation Amid Great Enthusiasm.

The Democratic Convention Adopts the Financial Plan of the National Platform of 1892.

Full Text of Chairman Brice's Address to the Convention.

The Largest and Most Representative Gathering of Democrats in Ohio for Many Years.

Special to Times-Democrat.

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 21.—The convention of Democrats here to-day is recognized as the largest and most representative convention ever held in Ohio. The hotels of Springfield are inadequate to furnish accommodations for the people. The Democracy of Ohio feel that there is victory in the air, and they are enthusiastic. They are here in force to put in nomination a ticket around which the people can rally in November.

The different delegations held their preliminary meetings last night and selected members of the various committees. The members of these committees from the Fourth district were as follows: Credentials, John Laughlin, Sidney; Rules, J. J. Kinney, Celina; State Central Committee, A. D. Marsh, Celina; Permanent Organization, C. A. Layton, Wakoneta; Resolutions, W. L. Mackenzie, Lima. Geo. W. Moore, of Darke county, was chosen vice president from the Fourth district. The committees held meetings immediately after their selection to prepare for the active work which Wednesday's session would bring.

At half past ten o'clock this morning Hon. M. A. Smalley, chairman of the state central committee, called the convention to order. The house was crowded from pit to dome when the chairman's gavel sounded. Chairman Smalley announced that the committee had selected for the temporary chairman Ohio's junior senator, Hon. Calvin S. Brice, of Lima. The appearance of Senator Brice upon the stage to assume the temporary chairmanship was the signal for an outburst of applause, and he was given a grand ovation when he was presented with the gavel.

CHAIRMAN BRICE'S ADDRESS.

Senator Brice, after acknowledging the honor and responsibility of the position, said:

"I can only succeed with your forbearance and assistance, upon which I shall rely, knowing that we have all come for the same general purpose—the success of the Democratic party of the State. We may differ as to details and as to the instrumentalities by which may be best to accomplish our common purpose, but this year, if ever, the Ohio Democracy must fight with unbroken ranks against our common enemy. Last year's defeat was not local. We suffered everywhere, and it is idle talk of its being the fault of any one man, or any single act of the party. The world-wide panic, industrial and financial depression, low wages, despair for farmers and merchants, and at the bottom of it all, a false tariff system and an unwise and fatally weak currency situation had thrown over the whole nation resentment against the party which happened to be in power when the disaster came. The Democratic party was declared dead. There was fierce clamor against the President, the Democratic Senate and the Democratic House. This feeling led us both branches of Congress. This vast concourse of Democrats tells that a panic has come over the public. Panic and fear have passed away. The party's fortunes are rising, confidence established and business everywhere reviving, and it is now only a question of time, either in November of this year, or of next year, when the people will reward the Democratic party for its profound service to the republic. The three great promises made the people in 1892 have been more nearly fulfilled than any three promises ever made by any party in any platform. They were: Home rule, sound money and free trade, as nearly as government requirements permit. The Democratic party fulfilled the promises by repealing the force, the Sherman and the McKinley bills. This was accomplished in the face of the fierce opposition and in the place was passed a Democratic tariff bill, which will long stand the law of the land. Many of my Democratic friends were disturbed and indignant at my course in the framing of that bill. We did not propose to return to you with the McKinley law unrepented, if it lay within our power, and we did not. This we could not do if we abolished all taxes and bankruptcies resulting in the large appropriation resulting in the bankruptcy of the United States treasury and consequent uncertainty and ruin of all your business, financial and industrial machinery. We could not consent to the passage of the bill that did not provide sufficient revenue. It is now clear that, with restored revenue to pay all legitimate outgo for the fiscal year. Our judgment is meeting the approbation of every ward and township in the State of Ohio. There is no danger of the revival of the tariff question, except by extreme protectionists. But, gentlemen, there is another question about which there is great difference of opinion. It will, perhaps, not be regarded as out of place or improper for me as an individual Democrat somewhat familiar with the discussion and conditions to make some suggestions in this convention which may be taken for what they are worth. I have a deep interest in the fortunes of the Democratic party in this State and in this country. I attended my first State convention in 1863, in the heat of the war, when we nominated Clement L. Vallandigham and George E. Fugh. I participated in the discussion from 1863 to 1876 on another branch of this money question, constantly endeavoring through all these years to have my fellow Democrats come where we finally did come, to a sound money platform under the wise and able leadership of Samuel J. Tilden in 1876, and when I see to-day efforts being made to divide the great Democratic party, just on the eve of its revival and resumption of power, on theoretical and academic questions, I feel that I have a duty to perform. I come to this convention to ask full consideration before taking passionate action. I come to urge the party in Ohio to stand on the platform of 1892 on the money question, to let the currency remain as it is now and not to change our ground without full deliberation at a national convention and a deliberation from that body. I come to urge that declaration for free coinage would be foolish, because it would be an impotent and idle declaration; it would separate us from the national Democracy; it would drive from our support thousands and hundreds of thousands of men who otherwise would act with us. A declaration in favor of free and unlimited coinage of silver—in to be made by this convention would have no practical effect, and it would mean an abandonment and disclaimer of the splendid result of your Democratic administration. You and I have possibly differed from Mr. Cleveland some time and in something, which is our right, our privilege, our duty to do if we are conscientious in doing so. But taking him by and large he is the greatest statesman and party leader of his time. His honesty, his integrity, his continued attention to the business which constitutes genius, have never been excelled; and, in my opinion, Democratic success in 1896 will lie in which we largely due to the success of our Democratic president and to the high plane upon which he has sought to place his party and his administration. Do not understand me as suggesting the candidacy of President Cleveland for re-election. No such question is now before you. You have heard the Republican war cry. Their statement that while both the tariff and silver questions will be discussed neither will be the issue in the sense of other questions, that the great paramount issue upon which the battle of this year and next will be fought will be the repeal of the Democratic party under President Cleveland; that the question will be whether it is to be endorsed and its policy continued or whether it shall be repudiated and its policy ended. We accept this and on it will make our contest, and of the final judgment of the American people there can be no doubt. The American people will in the end stand by us for home rule, that is to say, for interference by the national government with the elections of the people; sound tariff, that is to say, a tariff only made for sufficient revenue to carry on the government economically administered, and for sound money, that is to say a currency of gold and silver, whether paper or silver or gold, shall be interchangeable and equally good for their nominal par in the hands of every man everywhere, and the Democratic party will be assured of a triumph and future.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following majority report of the committee on resolutions was adopted by the convention.

The Democratic party in convention assembled, points with satisfaction and pride to the wisdom of the action of that party in the last two years and results accomplished according to its promises, to wit: The repeal of the Republican legislation known as the Sherman law; the un-American Federal election law and the McKinley law, from which repeals has resulted returning prosperity to the country to such an extent that even the Republicans are obliged to recognize the same. We congratulate President Cleveland that his efforts in favor of the repeal of these vicious laws and the upholding of the credit of the country have been successful. We congratulate our Senator, Hon. Calvin S. Brice, for the eminent, noble and efficient support he has given to the President in these matters. When we consider the fact that the Democratic party received from the Republican party in 1892 a bankrupt treasury; that it inherited from them the vicious currency and tariff laws which it had prepared and finally produced the panic of 1893, we think that it is entitled to the thanks of the people for the course which it has taken.

tacked and repealed these laws. We reaffirm the following portion of the seventh plank of the platform of the last national Democratic convention. We hold the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and to the coinage of gold and silver without discrimination against either metal, or charge for mintage, but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value, or be adjusted by international agreement, or by such safeguards of legislation as shall insure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals, and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the payment of debts, and we demand that the paper currency be kept at par with and redeemable in sound money. We insist upon this policy as especially necessary for the protection of farmers and laboring classes, the first and most defenseless victims of unstable money and fluctuating currency.

NO UNLIMITED COINAGE.

Following the presentation of the majority report of the committee on resolutions by Hon. Frank Hurd, Hon. A. W. Patrick, of Tuscarawas, presented a minority report advocating the free and unlimited coinage of silver, the majority report being represented by nineteen of the twenty-one districts. Judge Patrick made a radical address in support of the minority report. Hurd followed with a logical and able argument in support of the majority report. The roll call resulted in the adoption of the majority report by a vote of 525 to 269.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

After the adoption of the resolutions, two hours were spent in the discussion of a resolution advocating the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine. This matter was finally disposed of, and Chairman Brice announced that the convention would proceed to the nomination of a ticket.

BY ACCLAMATION.

The first candidate to be nominated was for Governor. As soon as nominations for the position were in favor of free and unlimited coinage of silver, he was nominated by acclamation. He protested against the nomination, but without avail. His friends and the entire party were united in demanding that he be the standard bearer.

The convention is now making the nominations for the other positions to be filled on the ticket.

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 21.—The Democratic state convention assembled in the city hall here at 10 o'clock today for the purpose of electing a ticket for the coming year. The temporary chairman, Senator Brice, presided.

The district and other preliminary meetings of the convention were held here yesterday.

Senator Brice reached Lima from New York Monday, and arrived here yesterday morning. He has been making the night of his life for a platform harmony with the views of President Cleveland, Secretary (Cahill) and himself on the financial question. He has not been taking an aggressive part for the moment, but he has been making the night of his life for a platform harmony with the views of President Cleveland, Secretary (Cahill) and himself on the financial question. He has not been taking an aggressive part for the moment, but he has been making the night of his life for a platform harmony with the views of President Cleveland, Secretary (Cahill) and himself on the financial question.

The silver men held meetings during the day to secure endorsements for their resolution, but while they were making speeches to the city.

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE.

Many Teachers Present. The Instructors Thoroughly Qualified—Yesterday's Session.

The Institute this year promises to be a successful and interesting session. A large number of teachers are present and the enrollment yesterday morning exceeded one hundred. The instructors are men of ability and thoroughly qualified for their work. Professor Miller has already obtained the interest of all those attending and at first made that pleasurable impression upon the teachers which his earnest and congenial manner is accustomed to produce on all those who are privileged to see and hear him.

Monday evening he entertained a crowded hall by lecturing on that popular subject "Napoleon." His discourse was both interesting and instructive.

Professor Hauck, of Harrisburg, Pa., is a pleasing talker and keeps his listeners in a happy mood by the stories he is continually interspersing with the information he gives. He lectured last evening before a good audience.

Yesterday morning Mr. Miller gave an excellent talk on geography, discussing the divisions and purchases of the natural growth of the United States. In the afternoon he talked on Alaska and gave the inside history of its purchase as an outcome of the friendly relations
